Hi, everyone. Today, I have big news. We will have a special English lesson with the American students next week. So, please bring your own computers to talk with them. I want you to talk about the recycling systems in both Japan and America. That sounds exciting, right? Now, I will tell you more about this special class.

First, say "Hello," to the American students. Next, please use some pictures to tell them about the recycling system in Japan in English. Then, they will tell you about the recycling system in America. Please ask them some questions about the system. Try to find some differences in the recycling systems between the two countries. I think you will have fun because you can talk with them in English and learn something new.

Question 1 : What will the Japanese students do in Ms. Daisy's next English lesson?

Question 2 : How will the Japanese students tell the American students about the recycling system?
